A SONG OF REST.

Oh! sing me a song of evening,
A song of peace and rest,
When, weary with useless flying,
The wild birds seek the nest;
When the lamps of home are lighted
And those we love draw nigh,
And overhead the kindly stars
Are smiling in the sky.

The day has been dark and dreary,
The shadows fall thick and fast,
And my limbs and my heart are weary
From battling with the blast;
And now as the shades of evening
Creep darkly o'er the land,
I sigh for a breath of peace and rest
And the touch of a friendly hand.

My thoughts turn back in the twilight
To scenes long passed away,
When, free from the toil of labor
I wandered in childish play;
I see the vine-clad doorway,
Where oft my mother stood,
And the thoughts of a home I know no more
Come o'er me like a flood.

Then sing me a song of evening,
Of peaceful love and rest;
I am weary of useless striving
And I long for the sheltering nest.
The rugged shadows of evening
Are filling all the land,
And I sigh for a breath of love and rest
And the touch of a mother's hand.
—Mortimer C. Brown, in Yankee Blade.

TO THE CITY.

And the Sad Home-Coming of a Wayward Boy.

"Good-by to the old farm!"

"How so, my son?" asked the grizzly father, as the young man hung the scythe on the tool-house rack.

"I say good-by to plow and furrow, hills, rocks, long hours of hard work and poor pay. I have chopped my last stick of cord wood, husked my last bushel of corn. I hang up the scythe now forever. The great city shall give me a living."

"But, my boy, the farm shall be yours to-morrow. Only give mother and me our bread, and that, too, not for long."

"I don't want it. Sell it, give it away. I'm done," hotly exclaimed the young man, as he wiped his beady forehead with his tawny hand.

"John, listen to reason. It has been a scorching summer but we have nearly finished it. You think these people who roll by here in the mountain stages every day have things easier than we. But this is their vacation. All these fine gentlemen work like slaves the rest of the year, and the city girls with gay dresses and white hands—"

"I tell you, father, I'm done. Don't argue it."

"But to leave the farm because destiny calls, because one is fitted by education, by nature for other avocations or because one sees an opening is well enough. To go to the city, however, for the mere sake of going to the city—John, you are a fool. What will you do for bread? It doesn't grow on street lamps."

It was all in vain to add words. The haying was over; the limit of endurance the young scamp had fixed in mind all summer through, as many an evening he had climbed the stone wall, musing in the dust of passing coaches whose laughter pealed forth upon him like a song of sirens, or sullenly answering the frolicsome pedestrians who paused upon their alpen-stocks to ask how much farther to the Tip-top house. It was not far, and of evenings when the air was still, down through the great hemlocks came strains of bewitching music, startling the sheep in this high pasture, and yearlings from their browsing, and startling the heir of all these herds as well.

It was not so last year, this strange discontent; it was never so with him before; though born under yonder red, low-roofed, old dwelling, as were all his fathers; though the window of his birth-chamber looked out upon the mountain caravansary, whose cool splendors thousands yearly came to see. But he was eighteen now. It is stepping into a new world to become eighteen years old.

He was eighteen, and the only child alive; generous, willful, pampered, of robust health, and by no means an Arcadian saint, though living amid the so-called innocent country hills. As he reclined upon the roadside wall, there was yet something about him very engaging. The open countenance blushing in the settling sunbeams, the full brow and quick, dark eye, the broad chest and stout limbs of a perfectly formed and handsome animal. But the human animal can dream, picture, plan and ponder with powers of mind that no other animal possesses. John was the last fellow who should have gone to the great town. Of warm affections, conscience, he had none. What pleasures and gratifications did his vivid imagination sketch upon the evening sky, away southward, whitherward lay the vast city, miles and miles down?

Farewell the broad rough uplands, with familiar stone heaps dotted over; the upper barn where he had "broken" many a wild colt and called it his own; the white gable of his neighbor whither the path across lots ran, trodden by his bare feet almost since their first steps; farewell the schoolhouse at four corners, the sweep and stretch of fairest landscape under the sky, set in the distance with the spires of village churches far down the valley. The home of many blessings, and a shadowed face at the window leaning on an old hand in the twilight gloaming; for father had been in and told the story, and the two old ones were powerless against the young, imperious resolution. He in reverie, they in pondering deep; not how they shall coax a living from the old farm, for they would rather the time had come to die, and cease the strife of a life rent with gaping graves into which strong sons had sunk one by one and left them only one, and he more cruel than their other sorrows; pondering how to prevent the ills of passions never yet controlled by their Saviour's strong and gentle hand; foreseeing much and fearing more; for they were ignorant of the city, too. He in reverie, building gaudy castles of a good time coming, and he free to drink to his fill; in reverie till the stars came out above the mountain pines. They in prayer together for him, in the chamber where he was born, and what more could they do, having given him up to God?

After all, it was not a very joyous departure that Monday morning in the September glory.

The boy could not quite exult as he had anticipated. The mother, with her last few tokens of love that can never cease to care for its own; tokens wrought with clumsy, eager fingers, and homely with the style of the hill country, and the last trembling embrace. The father silent as they jogged to the village station, as if his great heart halted midway between his love and indignation. For it was a fool's errand, was it not? A headstrong inclination to desert a good home and its duties for a whim. But his boy had not run away at least, and he would speed him to short folly and to quick and sure return. Even the dog protested: and believe us, it touched the boy's heart most of all, as with frantic skurry he bayed the train away.

Well, well, the great town opened its arms and took the young man in, as the myriad lamps of night laughed and winked at his conceit, twinkled and winked and joined hands down the long boulevards of darkness, till they seemed to change to fiery serpents with many a coil hissing. "Here comes another. What shall we do with him?" And now the dull roar of the streets gave answer: "We know what to do with him." To all of which the boy replied: "Have I not read all about it? I shall know what to do with myself. I come to prey, not to be preyed upon." But it must be confessed, again that one is not quite so confident standing in the actual presence of the vast metropolis, as among the mountain paths looking thitherward. The city opened its jaws and took him in.

It is not for us to tell all that the city did with the aimless and pitiful fool. He was not without a welcome. Many welcomed him. He was strong, and could give much strength away. His veins were full, and it took many moons to suck them dry. He was mountain fed, and his fat wasted slowly. But the vampires were many, the fires were kept burning, and God's laws were enforced.

We saw the end this summer. It was in this wise. We were riding down from the Tip-top house as the sun went down, and sat beside the loquacious driver. As we stopped to untrig the wheels in a farmhouse yard, an old man sat by the wall, his white hair roseate in the day's farewell, and unutterable sadness in his fine old face. A few neighbors loitered about the tidy gateway, and a cheap crape knot fluttered at the door beneath the porch.

"A death here, driver?"

"Just the same as elsewhere, sir." And we were silently attentive at his reply, while he went on to explain.

"You see, sir, the city had him about a year. He had a good time; too good. The doctors wrote from the hospital. His father went after him. They thought the mountain air would revive him. But the fool hath said in his heart there is no God, and—"

"And driver, the city ground him up and spit him out."

"Yes, sir. They have the tools to grind men with down there, I reckon."

We rattled on down the same stony highway traversed by the New England boy one little year before; and we burned to whisper his story, as a warning, to a youth whom we know of in a happy country home. Heaven bless him as he reads.—Harkley Harker, in N. Y. Weekly.

"DONT'S" FOR THE SICK ROOM.

DON'T rock your chair incessantly.

DON'T stay so long as to tire the patient.

DON'T shut the register with a clashing sound.

DON'T come into the room with wet clothing on.

DON'T talk about sickness or other disagreeable subjects.

DON'T let the bureau knobs fall heavily or bang the doors.

DON'T kiss the patient if you have just come out of the cold.

DON'T sit where the patient must change her position to look at you.

DON'T play with anything in your hands or anything affixed to the furniture.

DON'T talk so fast that it is a strain on the patient's nerves to understand all you say.

DON'T sit by the side of the patient, for then she can't look at you without straining her neck.

DON'T, if there is already another person in the room, sit so that the patient will have to be constantly shaking her head to look from one to the other.

THE various forms of leave-taking have a more special significance than is generally awarded to them. "Adieu" signifies "To God I commend you." "Good-by" is a contraction of "God be with you," while "Farewell" means "Be happy," or more literally, "May you journey well."

PARADISE FOR DARKIES.

Where Fruit Grows Out of the Rocks and Frost Is Unknown.

One can easily imagine that in a country like this, where fruit and vines grow out of rocks, where frost is unknown and one may go barefooted or bathe in the ocean the year round, the colored man finds himself in an earthly heaven, writes a Nassau correspondent of the Chicago Herald. An average negro family in Nassau pays a dollar a month rent for a one-room house, but what does that matter, since they live pretty much outdoors from New Year's to New Year's? A few pennies will buy enough corn hominy for a meal, and sapodillas, mangoes, cocoanuts and pineapples grow in the yard without any cultivation.

As a rule the negro family does not know at supper where its breakfast is coming from, but they do not worry over a little thing like that. If nothing else turns up they can go down to the harbor and catch a few fish or send one of the small boys down to the bottom of the water for a conk. The children don't need shoes and clothing, excepting only Sunday outfits, is a very small matter for either adults or children.

Sunday is the great day. No matter how poor the family, or how few the day's work had during the week at fifty cents the day, Sabbath morning every colored man, woman and child come out with a spick and span gown and the adults torture their big, swollen feet, with spreading toes and long, flaring heels, by encasing them in cowhide shoes. The average colored person is proud, even if poor. Those who live in the suburbs and have to come some distance to church walk the two or three or four miles to the outskirts of the town carrying their shoes in their hands, and when they reach the city they sit down and put on their shoes and stockings, hire a carriage at twelve and a half cents per passenger and ride into town in good style, as happy as mortals are permitted to be in this vale of corns and corruption.

Another thing which contributes to the happiness of the colored population on Sunday is the fact that some years ago they made a stand for their rights, and had the doors of all the churches thrown open to them. There is not a church in the Bahama islands without its share of colored communicants. Even at the very high and aristocratic cathedral of the Church of England, about one-third of the congregation is colored, and three or four large black gentlemen, with solemn manners, the queerest neckties ever made, and large, wide boots which pinch their feet, limp up and down the aisles passing the plate. The negro ministers, who are numerous, drop their h's.

INTERESTING BIOGRAPHIES.

Two Young Women Agree to Write Each Other's History.

It's a novel idea, that of two young women living far south of Buffalo. They were little girls together and have continued as chums up to the present time. They are now well along in their teens. One day when they were playing with dolls a novel idea was proposed. It was that at the end of each year each would write a history of the other's life during the twelve months just passed. Details about the joys, sorrows and incidents of daily life were to be chronicled and each was given permission to point out the faults and failings of the other.

The scheme, says the Toledo Blade, has worked to a charm as far as can be learned—for the biographies are kept secret—and young women have seen themselves as others see them. One of them told a friend a short time ago that she had found two faults with her friend last year and an equal number had been found with her. She said that the word love had never been written by either in her chronicle. This year, however, will likely contain something referring to the divine passion. It is said too that the kodak has been brought into requisition this year for the purpose of illustration, when the party illustrated least expected it.

Age of the Salvation Army.

The Salvation Army has been in existence just thirteen years. It had its origin in a sensational way in the English town of Whitby, in the rough, coal-mining district of Yorkshire, where Gen. Booth, at that time Rev. William Booth, was doing humble mission work. England was then in arms, expecting to jump into the Russo-Turkish war. It occurred to Booth that he might attract a crowd by issuing a declaration of war himself, so he prepared one forthwith, sprinkled it plentifully with hallelujahs and posted two thousand copies of it about town. The device tickled the British sense of humor, there was a "red-hot, rousing meeting," to quote Gen. Booth, "the penitents fell down in heaps" and the Salvation Army sprang into life full-grown.

Three Notable Families.

This county contains three remarkable families, writes a Milan (Tenn.) correspondent. It is perhaps safe to say that it contains the tallest, the heaviest and the lightest families in the country. The tall family consists of four persons—father, mother, son and daughter. The tallest member, the son, measures 6 feet 8 inches; the shortest, the mother, 6 feet 2 inches. The heavy family is composed of father, mother and daughter, and their united weight is over 900 pounds. The light family number ten persons, father, mother and eight children, whose united weight is 513 pounds.

TARIFF PICTURES.

In 1857 the American workingman paid for his overalls an average price of $1 20

In 1890, the last year of the tariff of 1883, he paid 79 cents.

In 1891 the "McKinley prices" for overalls are 70 cents.

When free traders say that the McKinley tariff puts a "Chinese wall" that shuts out commerce around our coasts, they talk nonsense. During the year 1890 our imports of free merchandise were larger than in any previous year of our history. They were $265,668,629.

During the first eleven months under the McKinley law the value of our imports of free merchandise was $364,661,336.

Trade in non-competitive products under the present tariff is absolutely the freest ever known in this country.

SAUCY CHILI.

On Monday, the United States Government, through Minister Egan, formally demanded reparation from the Government of Chili for the attack recently made in Valparaiso upon a number of seamen of the United States cruiser Baltimore. Egan presented the Junta with a detailed statement of the results of the investigation made by Captain Schley of the Baltimore and himself. Egan, in presenting the Chilian Junta with his statement, expressed in distinct terms the feeling of great indignation which the State Department at Washington feels at the whole affair, and especially at the brutal conduct of the police of Valparaiso in joining with the mob in the latter's attack upon the Baltimore's seamen, and in drawing bayonets and using them against unarmed Americans. Egan also particularly called attention to the additional brutality of the police of Valparaiso in using horses to drag the Americans to prison.

After making a brief but pointed summary of the facts to which he had been instructed to call attention, Egan informed the representatives of the Junta that in the name of the United States he demanded reparation for the insult and injuries complained of.

Now the question which arises is, what will be the action of the Chilian Government? As it appears now there seems no doubt that the Junta will soon make the reparation demanded.

On Monday, a short cablegram was received at the Navy Department from Commodore Schley, Valparaiso, announcing the death of Wm. Turnbull, one of the Baltimore's coal-heavers wounded in the recent assault. Orders have been sent by Secretary Tracy to Admiral Brown at Callao, Peru, to sail immediately with the San Francisco to San Francisco. The reason assigned is the foul condition of the vessel's bottom, which cannot be cleaned in Chili or Peru.

Later advices say Chili refuses to accede to the demands of the United States.

The Chilian Government has replied to Minister Egan's demand for an explanation of the recent attack upon American sailors. The reply is couched in very strong language, and it is understood that it amounts to a refusal to accept responsibility for the affair.

The State Department at Washington has been notified. Minister Egan, Commander Schley and Consul McCreery are consulting together, and it is th[illegible] [illegible]sive action will be taken soon. The State Department's orders in reference to the matter are very strong.

The Intendent of Valparaiso has refused to guarantee the safety of market boats coming to that city early in the morning from the United States warship Baltimore, of the safety of officers of that vessel coming ashore at night. This is a practical boycott on the Baltimore. No American sailors are allowed ashore.

In case of need sixteen war vessels can be concentrated at Valparaiso within ninety days.

At Paris, on Sunday last, Pere Hyacinth, in an address before an immense audience, including many Senators and Deputies, condemned superstitious abuses, such as the Lord's Vision and Holy Coat, and made a vehement attack on the Pope's temporal power agitation as inconsistent with his priestly office. He said the Pope would do well to heed the will of the Italian people and submit to the country's laws. The address was loudly applauded.

As the result of a boiler explosion in the heart of Louisville, Kentucky, Monday afternoon, one man was killed and several persons painfully injured, and nearly half a million dollars worth of property destroyed. The boiler was in the electric light plant of the Louisville Gas Company. The shock was like an earthquake. Fireman Adams, who was in the poiler room, was fatally injured.

At Columbia, on Monday, October 26th, the first two heats of the Direct-Pointer race were won by Direct—the first in 2:09, and the second in 2:08.

The third heat was won by Direct in 2:06¾.

One of the curious legends of North California is very well narrated by Dr. J. C. Tucker in the Argonaut of November 26. It is the story of Squaw Rock, on the Russian River, a beetling cliff that many have seen and known by name, though few have heard the legend. Dr. Tucker, who is known for his cultivated literary taste and the charm and grace of his writings, is doing a service to future generations in the accounts of early days in California, of hunting, fishing, goldmining, etc., and in the preservation of these legends, which he contributes to the Argonaut from time to time.

It having been decided that the Confederate Flag should not be displayed at the World's Fair, Field, at the annual meeting of the Society of the Army of Northern Virginia, said:

"I understand that the confederate flag cannot be unfurled at the World's Fair. If that be the case, let us never have anotder World's Frir in this country."

On Monday, at New York, Isaac Terkowsky, a Russian Jewish immigrant, when questioned by inspectors at the Landing bureau as to his financial ability to take care of himself, greatly surprised the officials by producing $1,300 cash and $25,000 in letters of credit.

The prairie fires, in Oklahoma, burned over a district ten miles wide and thirty long. Farm houses, cattle and crops were destroyed and many lives were lost. The town of Cimarron was completely wiped out.

What is said to be the largest lumber mill in the world is at Fort Blakeley, Washington. Last year this mill turned out 69,000,000 feet of lumber, over 28,000,000 laths and a large amount of other stock.

Rev. Dr. Carl Taubner, for a number of years pastor of the German Lutheran Church of Sacramento, died on Tuesday, aged 85 years.

Charles W. Slack has been appointed Superior Judge for San Francisco, vice Joseph P. Hoge, deceased.

School Board Treasurer Dolfinger, of Pittsburg, is short $50,000. He has disappeared—gone to the country.

The National Militia Convention has decided to have a grand gathering at the World's Fair.

SUMMONS.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE COUNTY of Alpine, State of California.

SAMUEL NEWMAN, Plaintiff, vs. HENRIETTA E. BARNES AND HIRAM B. BARNES, Defendants.

Action brought in the Superior Court of the said County of Alpine, State of California, and the Complaint filed in said County of Alpine in the office of the Clerk of said Superior Court. C. C. P. Sec. 407.

The People of the State of California, send Greeting to HENRIETTA E. BARNES AND HIRAM B. BARNES, Defendants.

You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above-named Plaintiff in the Superior Court of the said County of Alpine, State of California, and to answer the Complaint filed therein, within ten days, exclusive of the day of service, after the service on you of this Summons if served within this Alpine County; or, if served elsewhere, within thirty days.

The said action is brought to obtain judgment against you quieting the title of plaintiff in and to, and adjudging him to be the owner, and entitled to the possession of that certain parcel of mining ground situate in the Hope Valley and Blue Lakes Mining District, formerly Hope Valley and Red Mountain Mining District, Alpine County, California, and being that portion of the "Altura" Quartz Mining Claim, claimed by plaintiff, conflicting with the so called "Altura" Quartz Mining Claim, claimed by you defendants, which is described as follows, to wit: Beginning at a point on the Northwest boundary of the said mining claim, claimed by defendants, where it is intersected by the Northeast boundary of the Quartz Mining Claim of plaintiff; thence, Var. 16° 30′ E. 1st, S. 59° E. 22.72 chs to point; thence, 2d, S. 31¼° W. 8.59 chs to point; thence, 3d, N. 59° W. 22.72 chs to point; thence, 4th, N. 31¼° E. 8.59 chs to point of beginning; from which point of beginning, the N. W. Corner of the said Mining Claim of plaintiff bears North, 59° W. 5.18 chs distant, containing an area of 19.51 acres. Also, to have any pretended claim or estate of defendants or either of them in or to said parcel of ground adjudged void and for costs of suit, as will more fully appear by reference to the Complaint on file herein, reference to which is hereby expressly made.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said Complaint, as above required, said Plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief demanded in said Complaint.

[L.S.] Witness my hand and Seal of the Superior Court of the said County of Alpine, State of California, this 30th day of September, A. D. 1891.

FRANK SMITH,
Clerk.

Personal.

Sam Tyack and John Parr came from Bodie on Monday, and returned the same day.

Judge Virden returned from San Francisco on Sunday. His eye is much improved, and he is in hopes of saving it. His wife met him at Carson.

After an absence of several months in Inyo county, A. H. Allen returned home on Sunday.

Charles Kuhlmann, of Bodie, was in town on Monday.

Dr. Surryhne, of San Francisco, has located in Bodie. He visited this section on Monday.

A. F. Bryant returned from Carson on Monday.

H. C. Curren came from Bodie on Wednesday.

On Wednesday John Parr and D. M. Carrington, Jr., of Bodie; and Charles May and Scrutton, of Aurora, came here on a fishing and hunting excursion.

Joseph Hunt, on Thursday, arrived with produce from Antelope.

Grand Jury.—On Monday the following names were drawn from the box, returnable on November 16th, at 10 o'clock A. M.:

William Boardman, George H. Bump, Wilson Butler, A. L. Butterfield, J. L. Cain, R. C. Christan, J. H. Connell, Pat. Curtis, N. Daniels, William Dawson, W. T. Elliott, R. M. Folger, F. E. Hunewill, H. S. Kennedy, O. H. Kister, John Langrel, W. A. R. Loose, George H. Moyle, R. Mc Alpin, W. P. Nay, W. P. Onkst, J. F. Owen, J. L. Pitts, W. H. Russell, James Todkill, Philip Wathern and William Wetherill.

Change of Heart.—On Saturday evening we were suddenly converted, by immersion, not by an ordained minister, but by a narrow and crooked-plank across Postmaster Bryant's ditch. The plank being placed diagonal, we stepped off, and both the male and mail were well soaked—with water. It is well to say that the ditch is to have a culvert, hence no expressions adverse to that plank and ditch.

The Time.—Cards have been issued for the wedding of County Clerk John D. Murphey and Miss Clara Donnel, to take place at the Leavitt House, on Wednesday evening, November 11th, at 8 o'clock.

Ab ut Time.—After compelling janitors to dig wood from the snow for the past twenty years, the Trustees have contracted for the erection of a woodshed at the school house.

Freight.—Frank Doten's team arrived from Carson on Monday, with goods for Bodie.

On Thursday, W. P. Nay's two teams came from Carson with freight for Lundy.

Earthquake.—At 2 o'clock on Monday morning, a sharp shock of earthquake occurred here. The direction was from the west.

Auction Sale.—On Monday, at 2 P. M. Administrator Walters will sell at auction the personal property of Ah Tia, deceased. See advertisment.

In Jail.—A Bodie Indian was handed over to Sheriff Cody on Wednesday, to be imprisoned twenty days for drunkenness.

Assessment.—An assessment of fifteen cents per share has been levied upon the Bulwer.

Snow.—On Wednesday night a slight snow fell upon the mountains.

Religious.—Rev. T. Lloyd Bradley will hold service at the School House to-morrow morning at 11 o'clock. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

IN MEMORIUM.

"And they shall be Mine, saith the Lord of hosts, in that day when I make up My jewels."
—Malachi, 3-17.

But yesterday, a bright eyed little child,
In joy and beauty and gladness smiled,
And played and shouted in her innocent glee,
So gentle, so good, so fair to see.

To-day she lies there, dumb and still,
With eyes so dim and cheeks so chill,
And whitened lips, cold and set,
But a loving smile rests on them yet.

Oh, is this then my darling's doom,
To be laid away in the silent tomb?
And for my aching heart, no hope, no trust,
Only earth to earth and dust to dust?

No, go thou now, the mother condole,
Earth claims the body but not the soul,
For that precious gem is not under the sod,
But a jewel rare in the crown of God.

And mother, with patience await the time
Till thy work is finished and the sign
Comes from on high to join the throng,
And with thy children swell the song.

A father's pride, a mother's joy,
Can earthly pleasures their grief alloy?
No, only to God be thy sorrow confessed,
For he has promised to the weary—rest.

Kind Father, to thy care she's given,
And we are the better for this glimpse of heaven,
But since Thou hast claimed this little one,
Help us to say "Thy will be done."

A brother called from the golden shore,
Where sorrow can enter no more, no more,
We could not hear the low sweet tone,
But she did, and answered: "I come, I come."

The Carson Valley Creamery is a grand success. Thirty-four ranches are supplying the milk, and more are "coming in." It produces 600 pounds of butter daily, which is moulded into square blocks, weighing two pounds, and packed in boxes of 120 pounds, and meets a ready sale in San Francisco. It is expected that $4,000 per month will be paid for milk. The skim milk is resold to the farmers at 10 cents per 100 pounds, or made into cheese, the presses turning out 400 pounds per day.

The Musician's Guide.—Every music teacher, student or music lover should have this volume. It contains 200 pages of valuable musical information, with full description of over 10,000 pieces of music and music books, biographal sketches of over 150 composers, with portraits and other illustrations. Also a choice selection of new vocal and instrumental music and other attractive features. Upon receipt of eight two-cent stamps, to prepay postage, we will mail free, a copy of The Musicians' Guide, also a copy of Brainard's Musical World containing $2 00 worth of new music and interesting reading matter. Address The S. Brainard's Sons Co., Chicago, Ill.

Ever since the establishment of the first paper on the bay of San Francisco, which we believe was the "Alta," removed from Monterey in 1849; the inhabitants of the Coast generally have been interested in the news from San Francisco. The "Alta," like many other pioneers of '49, has succumbed to the inevitable and gone over to the great majority, and, like other pioneers, has been succeeded by younger generations. The "Examiner" has taken perhaps the most prominent place in the newspaper field of late years, and its Weekly edition is very generally taken by those who want an interesting and reliable paper published at "The Bay." Everyone is familiar with the Premium Offers made by Mr. Hearst, the "Examiner's" enterprising publisher, and it is only necessary to say that this year the aggregate value of the premiums—of which there are 5,000—is $125,000, which are distributed among all the subscribers to the paper. In addition to these premiums, which range in value from 50 cents to $7,500, every subscriber receives one of the four great premium pictures, which will be mailed to him in a tube direct from the "Examiner" office as soon as the subscription is received:

"The Retreat from Moscow," by Meissonier.

"The Roman Chariot Race," by A. Wagner.

Each of these pictures is 21x28 inches, and they are elegantly reproduced in fac simile, showing every tint and color of the great originals, either one of which could not be purchased for $100,000.

"Women and Children First," by C. Napier Hemy

"Christ Leaving the Pretorium," by Gustave Doré

Each of these pictures is reproduced in photogravure, size 21x28, and eminently fitted for framing, and will adorn the walls of the most refined home.

The subscription price of the "Weekly Examiner" is $1.50, and subscriptions may be sent either direct to W. R. Hearst, Publisher, San Francisco, through the Local Agent of the "Examiner" or the Postmaster.

Schepp's Photograph of the World.—The well known Agent and Canvasser, Harrison McCamly, is soliciting subscribers for Schepp's Photograph of the World, one of the most artistic publications of the age. In the preparation of this immense work, the Schepp Brothers, of Philadelphia sent to every section of the world the most renowned artists at expense of $100,000, and we judge from a cursory view of the circular, that their work has been well and faithfully done. Picturesque scenery, celebrated paintings, statuary, are given with the unerring accuracy that only art photography, in its best dress, can give. The work is the world in miniature; the pictures are an enlarged size, 6x8 inches, while the book will be 9x11 inches. It will be delivered to subscribers in two months upwards, not exceeding 6 months, from November 1st, 1891, in bindings plain, elegant and durable at prices corresponding with the times. We bespeak for the work, and believe it will receive an immense patronage. The explanations in the work accompanying the illustrations will be rendered in both English and German, thus making it more attractive in general.

SERIOUS DANGER

Threatens every man, woman or child living in a region of country where fever and ague is prevalent, since the germs of malarial disease are inhaled from the air and are swallowed from the water of such a region. Medicinal safeguard is absolutely necessary to nullify this danger. As a means of fortifying and acclimating the system so as to be able to resist the malarial poison, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is incomparably the best and the most popular. Irregularities of the stomach, liver and bowels encourage malaria; but these are speedily rectified by the Bitters. The functions of digestion and secretion are assisted by its use, and a vigorous as well as regular condition of the system promoted by it. Constitution and physique are thus defended against the inroads of malaria by this matchless preventive, which is also a certain and thorough remedy in the worst cases of intermittent and remittent fevers.

UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER.

Tho' patriotic to the core,
I never have been partial
Before to-day, I must admit,
To matters that were martial.
But, since I saw that squad of girls
Their evolutions making,
I own that in a uniform
There's something very "taking."

At all events, one uniform—
Or, rather what was in it—
So very "taking" proved, it took
Me captive in a minute.
Tho' all were lovely, rank and file,
And each the manual apt in,
The leader was the loveliest—
My captor was the captain.

A man, mayhap, might meet, unmoved
A charge from leveled lances;
But none, I'll swear, could long withstand
This batt'ry of bright glances!
Nay, nay! Who looked at her must lay
Beneath those feet so slender,
His heart in unconditional
And yet in glad surrender.

A little cap upon her curls,
Gold straps upon her shoulder,
Brass buttons blazing in a way
To blind the rash beholder.
She took me pris'ner on the spot,
This maiden military,
Tho' I'm a man, and tho' a mouse
At home might make her "scary."

When first she drew her sword and sent
Her silv'ry voice a-sounding
Along the line, my heart leaped up,
As to the challenge bounding:
But, e'er a way one smile to win
From her love could discover,
She dealt my heart a blow from which
I know I'll ne'er recover.

But tho' to that belligerent
Yet beautiful young daughter
Of Massachusetts, I gave in,
And humbly cried for quarter,
O, tho' of wars and war's alarms
I've ever been a hater,
Here's hoping I may live to tell
Of an engagement later:

A HUNTER'S NERVE.

Calmly Facing a Ferocious South American Tiger.

It was in the state of Mirandoa, New Venezuela. It was three o'clock in the morning, and I was with Manuel, the tiger hunter, on the mountain. After a half-hour of cautious walking Manuel paused at a turn in the narrow path, and I felt rather than saw that the dawn of day was at hand. There was a strange stir in the air, as though the feeble breath of life had come back to the dead and inanimate nature. Over beyond the eastern mountain tops the stars were growing pale. The first faint gray tinge of dawn was coming a long way off.

Day came slowly. I noted this with surprise, for I had any number of times read descriptions of dawn in the tropics wherein it was represented that day came with a bound out of the blackness of the night. Perhaps the writers of these descriptions had waited until the sun had already reddened the eastern sky before watching for the dawn. From the time that I noticed the first faint gray streaks in the sky until the sun was actually shining on the mountain tops it was perhaps a little more than an hour. I have seen the day break in the Rocky mountains in the same length of time, with the only difference that in the tropics the day came more swiftly after the rosy lights had come into the sky. Between the first grays of the early morning and the rosy hues of actual day there was little difference in the Cordilleras and the Rocky mountains.

I could have watched the coming day for another hour, but as soon as it was light enough to see the surrounding objects Manuel carefully chose a spot which I could occupy during the impending gladiatorial exhibition. It was the peak of a high rock that almost overhung the path that he eventually chose, and with some difficulty I climbed to the top of it. Nature evidently had intended the rock for some such purpose as this, for it gave a good view of the path for some distance on each side. I could easily have seen any animal walking upon it for a considerable distance in either direction. There was plenty of evidence, too, that the advantage of this peak as a lookout station had been appreciated and used by other hunters than man. Indications showed that wild beasts, presumably tigers, had crouched there in wait for unsuspecting prey. This discovery gave me a mild sensation. I might be reasonably safe from the attack of a tiger in the path below, but I hesitated to think what would be the result if a tiger came up and found me occupying his private personal outlook.

When I was comfortably concealed behind the rock, although in a position that permitted me to keep careful watch of the exposed parts of the path, Manuel disappeared. He was standing by the base of the rock one moment, and the next moment he had vanished. He must have gone like a serpent, for I heard no sound. Then I was alone on a tiger's favorite resort in an uninhabited South American forest. It was hardly a pleasant sensation, especially as my revolver seemed to be, as doubtless it was, a very inadequate weapon. A suspicion might have crossed my mind that Manuel had left me there as a bait for a tiger, but I would not give it a moment's credence.

There were noises on the mountain side by this time, and some of them were so distinct that I could distinguish them. Small animals were scampering about in the undergrowth and birds were calling in the trees. A commotion among the birds some distance down the path attracted my attention, and I wondered if a tiger had stirred them up, or if Manuel had strayed as far away as that. A few moments later there was another commotion in the distance on the other hand of me, but I gave little heed to it. On the right-hand side of the path a small creature, something like a North American woodchuck, stopped short in his leisurely morning walk and sniffed suspiciously at the air. I was to leeward of him in the light breeze that had sprung up, and so he could not have scented me. He sniffed a moment in the direction of the first disturbance, and then suddenly dived headlong into the undergrowth. Assuredly there was something off to windward that he was afraid of. The disturbance ceased after a time and then the mountain side was still again.

Looking down over the rock a few moments later I found Manuel gazing up at me. He pointed away off to the left in the direction of the second disturbance and again disappeared. It is probable that on this occasion he hid himself in the undergrowth alongside the path. I gave my undivided attention to the distant fluttering of birds. It was a curious sort of circus that the birds were having. The little things circled about in the tops of the trees and screamed shrilly one to the other. It might have been a huge snake that frightened and fascinated them, or it might have been a tiger. Manuel knew, in all probability, but he made no sign.

The disturbance came a little nearer, but it seemed to me that it moved very slowly. If a tiger were coming along the path he should, in my opinion, have made better time. I calmed my impatience by assuring myself that if it were a tiger he would come fast enough when he once got wind of me. It was a long half hour of suspense before the disturbance came within reasonable distance. Before half of that time had passed I was satisfied that something very objectionable to birds was walking leisurely along the path, and perhaps stopping now and then in the hope of surprising one of the birds unawares.

At length the thing was just beyond the turn in the path. In a moment or two I should see what it was. Then I became conscious that Manuel was standing in the middle of the path, with his short spear held in a horizontal position over his shoulder. This was interesting and at the same time very suggestive. I concentrated my entire nervous system in an intense contemplation of the turn in the path. The suspense was awful.

Ah! what was that? A striped and spotted animal suddenly stood out in the open. His long tail swung slowly from side to side, and his smooth coat moved nervously with some passing emotion. It was the tiger of the South American forests. He had stopped with one foot advanced, and with his head in the attitude of attention. He had seen something in the path before him. It was Manuel, who was standing as immovable as the rock beside him. It was a beautiful beast all silk and softness and graceful curves. I thought it a pity that so beautiful a thing should be hunted to the death, but at the same time I reflected that this wonderfully beautiful exterior covered a nature that was the living incarnation of ferocity.

I do not know how long Manuel and the tiger faced each other there in the narrow path like gladiators. It seemed a very long time. This was the test. The tiger waited instinctively to see the strange thing before him turn and run away as everything else in the forest invariably did, but greatly to his surprise the thing stood its ground like an immovable rock. The tiger was king of the forest, and he knew it, and when he had made up his mind that this thing was not going to run he came forward slowly to investigate. This was courage, even in a wild brute, and I respected him for it. I doubt if the lion or the tiger of India has this unshakable nerve.

I looked at Manuel as the tiger came slowly and cautiously along the path. He stood like a bronze statue, with his spear held over his right shoulder. Not so much as an eyelid moved. I confess that during this trying time I was a bit nervous. This was a new way of hunting to me, and a decided novelty in the actions of a wild beast which had not been attacked. I should expect an attack from a grizzly bear after it had been wounded, but assuredly the bear would not take the aggressive as this lithe and beautiful beast was doing. I will acknowledge that my heart thumped against my blue flannel shirt so hard that I was afraid that the noise would attract the attention of the tiger.

Slowly came the tiger; like a rock stood Manuel. It looked as though the case had been reversed, and that the tiger instead of the half-breed, was the hunter.

At length the tiger was within touching distance of the man. He looked the bronze figure over from head to foot and then thrust forward his head and sniffed at the man's feet. Back the great beast sprang like a steel spring. The figure was flesh and blood.

The tiger's tail twitched back and forth like a flail. The great jaws opened in a snarl. Quickly the beast measured his distance and crouched with quivering sinews for a spring. Such calm courage was grand beyond all description. It was matched only by the steadfast nerve of the man.

Now came the crisis. I could see the huge muscles heaving under the striped skin. In another second the tiger would leap upon his prey. In that instant the hunter made a motion with his left arm as quick as light itself. He tore a handkerchief from his neck and thrust it full in the tiger's face. Up went the tiger's head in a quiver of electrical amazement. Then the hunter's poised right arm shot forward with incredible force and the spear buried itself half way to the handle in the tiger's neck.

Ah, it was nobly done; and throughout it all, from the beginning until the wonderful ending, the hunter's nerve never faltered so much as by a hair's breadth. Before I could catch my breath and swallow the lumps of apprehension that had risen unbidden in my throat the fierce beast was dead in the path.

I scrambled down from the rock and stood beside the dead forest king. Manuel picked up his handkerchief and pulled out his spear. There was a faint suggestion of a smile about his impassive face.

"Does the Senor Americano believe?" he asked.

"He does," I answered, and I reached him my hand in that universal brotherhood of man which civilization can never efface. By the side of that dead tiger the savage and the son of civilization were on the one common level of man. There could be no difference.—N. Y. Recorder.

Of 10,000 persons one arrives at the age of 100 years, of 500 one attains the age of 90, and one in 100 lives to the age of 60.

The population of Paris, according to the census of last April is 2,422,969. In 1886 it was 2,269,645. It has, according to this, increased by 7 per cent. in the last five years.

It is said that in Munich, which consumes more beer than any other German city, the family allowance of the amber fluid amounts to 565 quarts a year for every man, woman and child.

The present population of Helsingfors, the capital of Finnland, is 59,647, of whom 29,787 are Finns and 29,860 are Swedes. Last year there were only 14,479 Finns and 23,949 Swedes. The diminishing of the proportion of Swedes in Helsingfors is due, as Novage Vremya asserts, to the progressive Russianization of Finnland.

IN UNCLE SAM'S EMPLOY.

Gen. Schofield will soon settle down in Washington in a cozy little home.

Justices Brown and Brewer are the only members of the supreme court who do not own houses in Washington, but they will soon do so.

Judge Wallace, of the United States circuit court, is in the fifties, above average height, slender and of fine appearance. His hair and mustache are iron gray and his countenance ruddy.

The life insurance carried by John Wanamaker amounts to $1,000,000, which is distributed in twenty-nine different companies. The premiums on these policies amount to $60,000 a year.

Senator Hurst was generally supposed to be worth about $90,000,000 when he died. The appraisers have filed their report in the San Francisco probate court and the estimated value of the entire estate is $8,788,137.15.

ASTRONOMICAL ATOMS

A full moon reflects one three-thousandth part of the sun's light.

Prof. Millosevich has given the name "Unitas" to the small planet, No. 306, lately discovered by him at Rome.

Prof. Mary E. Byrd, of Smith college, has been elected to membership by the British Astronomical association.

The new equatorial telescope recently mounted in Paris has its tube bent at a right angle, and the image of the sky formed by the object glass is reflected to the eye of the observer. It is the largest of its kind in the world, its optical powers being very fine, and the images of the planets remarkably distinct.

THE GOSPEL TRUTH.

If you are praying for a revival don't do it on a back seat.

It is not the longest sermons that awaken the most sinners.

A preacher with the big head is a man the devil loves to look at.

If you are praying for a revival don't go to church with your gloves on.

Preachers and churches who please everybody are the kind who never have revivals.

It doesn't do much good for the man to pray for a revival who will not pay his debts.

The man who goes to church much hears a great deal of preaching that hits other people.

The reason that some of our churches are so dark spiritually is because the people themselves want to do the shining.

If preachers would bear continually in mind that they are working for God there wouldn't be so much anxiety about wages.

A good many preachers try so hard to feed a few giraffes in their flocks that they let the sheep and lambs starve to death.—Ram's Horn.

WHAT MEN SAY AND DO.

"And she rejected you?" "She did." "By Jupiter! And yet they say that women have no sense."—Philadelphia Press.

Gus—"Did you hear of the joke Chollie played on his fiancee yesterday?" Bob—"No; what was it?" Gus—"He married her."—Truth.

"Several important steps quickly taken," murmured the young man when the girl's father helped him over the front door-sill.—Washington Post.

Fair Maiden—"What is the saddest thing you ever learned?" Blase Youth—"That every pretty girl has been some other fellow's sweetheart."—N. Y. Journal.

Miss Olegirl—"Did the gentlemen seem much grieved to find me out?" Butler (non-committal)—"I don't know, mum. They shook hands and said: 'Let's take a drink.'"—Yale Record.

He—"Then you reject me?" She—"I'm sorry, very sorry, but I must." He (desperately)—"Then there is only one thing left for me to do, that's all." She (anxiously)—"O, what do you intend to do?" He—"Propose to somebody else."—N. Y. Press.

QUEER THINGS IN CHINA.

It is the custom in many parts of China to tie a white cock to a coffin and then sacrifice it on the grave.

Beggars are an organized guild in China. They abound everywhere, and in the north their only garment, if any, is a tattered sheepskin.

In Shanghai and in many other places in China the crows build and raise their broods in the trees of the city. On account of the Buddhist reverence for all life, no one harms them.

The junks, whether at sea or on the river, are a perpetual terror to the steamer captains. The masters of the junks believe that if they can cross a moving steamer's bows close at hand it will bring them good luck for the year.

It is a custom very ancient and very common in China for anyone who has a grievance against anyone to get upon some elevated place and bawl it out to the neighborhood. Thus women on the roofs of the houses yell forth their domestic greivances.

THE FIRST BABY.

Mrs. Brown—"My baby is the prettiest in the town." Mrs. Black—"Why, what a coincidence! So is mine."

There is something radically wrong about the man who can have exactly the same opinion of his own baby that other people have.—Somerville Journal.

A Circus of His Own.—Wooden—"Did you go to the circus?" Bullfinch—"No, I didn't need to." Wooden—"Why?" Bullfinch—"We had twins at our house."—Boston Courier.

Pride may go before destruction, but the young father is going to express his feelings just the same as if it didn't, and it's no use to try to stop him.—Somerville Journal.

An Indiscreet Remark.—Young Mother—"What in the world makes the baby cry so?" Young Father—"I guess he heard me say I managed to get a little sleep last night."—Pittsburgh Press.

DEBIT AND CREDIT.

Each of the 1,500 street cars of New York earned $20 a day last year.

The mayor of Philadelphia receives $12,000 a year, the mayor of New York receives $10,000.

Physicians of this country are paid annually nearly $1,500,000 for medical examinations for life insurance companies. Three companies pay over $250,000 each.

The coins struck in the mints of the world last year were of less value than those coined in 1889. According to a statement just issued England coined the greatest quantity of gold and the United States the most silver.

It is estimated that at least $50,000,000 of the government's paper money supposed to be in circulation has been lost or destroyed. By the sinking of one vessel off the Atlantic coast some years ago $1,000,000 in greenbacks was lost.

FAIR AND BUSY MAIDENS.
